Eden Arrives for Asia, Palestine Talks Bitter Battle Seen in Albany on Tax Cut Moves

GOP Will Push Own Program Harriman Veto Is Compromise Key

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 30 (P)—Gov. Harriman's tax-reduction plan, a feature of the new state budget he will send to the Legislature Wednesday, is certain to touch off a bitter battle. Some observers think it might wind up in a compromise with the Republicans—or with no tax cut at all.

The governor will propose a $40,000,000 slash in state income taxes—in the form of a $5 credit this year for each taxpayer and $5 for each dependent. It would be applicable to payments on 1955 income.

Republicans, who control both houses of the Legislature, have indicated they will rip into the plan and, after chewing it to pieces, leave it for dead.

THEY WILL introduce their own tax-reduction program this week. It will provide for cuts totaling $50,000,000 on payments due this spring on 1955 income. Several other intra-party scraps may arise out of proposals to be made by Harriman in his budget, which is expected to hit an all-time high. There have been published reports that Harriman will call for expenditures of at least $100,000,000 more than the $132,000,000 he estimated for the fiscal year ending March 31.

But the tax battle will be the big one. The Republicans can—and will—kill Harriman's plan. Harriman can—and may—veto the GOP plan. The Republicans lack the votes to override. Thus may come a compromise or no tax cut.

ASSEMBLY Speaker Oswald D. Heck, who is at the top rung of the Republican leadership in the state, said yesterday in New York that the Democratic governor's tax-reduction was "contrary to good, sound practices of taxation." He said it would remove about a half-million people from the tax rolls. And he added that "one of the fundamental axioms of sound taxation is that as many people as possible should contribute to the support of the state government" because "it will make them more interested in how the government functions."

ACTUALLY the rival programs are regarded by many political observers as vote-getting lures in this presidential election year. Harriman has said that his plan would help those who need it most—taxpayers on the lower-income levels.

Heck did not disclose details of the Republican plan, but it is believed to provide for a larger percentage of reduction for the low-income groups than for those in the higher brackets.

HECK ALSO said some form of compulsory automobile liability insurance probably would be enacted at this session. He said a plan offered by Harriman would "clog still more the courts of New York." This plan calls for uninsured motorists to pay a special fee of $30 a year to provide a fund for indemnifying persons who suffered injuries or (Continued on Page 13, Col. 5)

Poorly-Built Homes Result in Slums, Yerry Says

Labor Rally Stresses That Unions Are Boon to Living Standards Here

Organized labor in area building trades was urged to gird itself for an influx of building interests that might tend to "break down union conditions and living standards" at a rally attended by an estimated 1500 persons at the municipal auditorium Saturday afternoon.

Several national labor leaders, in reference to an announced $60 million new park type community in the Flatbush section and $20 million shopping center on Route 28, all voiced disapproval of any construction groups which would come into the area and try to break down conditions which have been built up over a period of years for trade unionists in the area.

THE RALLY was the outgrowth of recent labor developments in the Flatbush section where pickets were assigned when foundations were started for a building by non-union laborers as part of the $60 million new park type community of up to 4,000 homes.

George E. Yerry, Jr., business agent of the Ulster and Sullivan Counties Building Construction Trades Council, was chairman of the rally. Mr. Yerry welcomed the trade unionists and pointed to several "non-union jobs in the last year."

HE AVOWED that "production-line homes are a detriment to the community, particularly to the buyer" and because "shoddy" construction might well develop into "slum areas."

"We all know the best mechanics are in the union," Mr. Yerry said, "and we owe a debt to old and new residents for the proper construction of homes." In reference to the establishment of a picket line at one project, Mr. Yerry said union members must protect the gains which have been made in the last 15 to 20 years.

HE URGED union members and their families to always insist on the "union label" when buying any merchandise. Mr. (Continued on Page 13, Col. 4)

Firemen Still Plod Through Building Ruins in Search for 9 Missing People

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (P)—Firemen who had already dragged out the bodies of 10 women early today plodded through the ruins of Arundel Park Auditorium, where flames last night touched off a panic among a church crowd of about 1,000.

Nine persons still were listed as missing.

More than 200 were injured in the frantic clawing, shoving and trampling which erupted as the swiftly spreading flames consumed Arundel Park Auditorium on the south edge of Baltimore. Red Cross officials reported 18 were admitted to nine hospitals and 111 were released after treatment. Firemen said about 100 others were treated at the scene.

Survivors said one minute they were sipping beer, munching food and listening to an orchestra play "Tea for Two" at the St. Rose of Lima Catholic church oyster roast.

Within a few moments the celebrants, including many children there with their parents, were transformed in a shrieking, stampeding pack of humanity.

As the fire swooshed along the wooden rafters and roof of the one-story cinder-block building, hundreds broke for two large doors in the front and rear.

One of the doors, which were of the overhead sliding type, used in garages, was never opened. Finding this escape barred, scores of occupants made for nearby windows.

Nine of the first bodies recovered were found huddled under one of these.

Al Barthelme, former professional basketball coach of the Old Baltimore Bullets and one of the survivors, described the scene at one window as "real panic."

"With everybody trying to get out of that window, it was pretty brutal," he said.

Reilly Is Retiring From BCI Ace Investigator Served Since 1927

After 29 years as a member of the New York State Police, Sergeant Arthur A. Reilly is retiring. Considered one of the best investigators in the troop, Sergeant Reilly has been a member of the BCI since July 1, 1940 and during that time he had taken part in important investigations.

Presently Sergeant Reilly is on vacation and will not return to duty prior to his retirement which will become effective February 1.

A NATIVE of Ulster county, Sergeant Reilly was born at Creek Locks and since 1929 when he was transferred to Ulster county from Monticello to open the Ellenville state police station along with Sergeant John Hopkins, who retired several years ago, he has served in his native county. For two years he was assigned to special duty in New York city but maintained his home here.

Appointed a trooper in Troop C on May 1, 1927 under Captain Daniel Fox, Reilly's first assignment was in Monticello. He remained there until 1929 when the Ellenville station was opened and with Sergeant Hopkins, one of the first state troopers to be appointed when Dr. George F. Chandler of Kingston organized the troopers and served as superintendent, manned the new Ellenville station.

WHEN A NEW station was opened on Albany avenue, Kingston, in 1932 Sergeant Reilly was selected to open and man that station. He remained at the Kingston station as a trooper until he was appointed a member of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation of the state police, a branch specially trained in the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Probe Continuing on Why Bauer Shot 6 of Family

Parsippany-Troy Hills, N. J., Jan. 30 (P)—Investigators questioned relatives today in a continued effort to learn why William Bauer wiped out six members of his family with a shotgun and then took his own life.

Morris County Prosecutor John D. Collins said yesterday that, to all intents, the case of the shooting rampage by the 48-year-old churchgoer is closed on a verdict of homicide and suicide.

He said, however, that county detectives were to question relatives of Bauer's wife in a probe for the motive.

Bauer, described by neighbors as a kindly and devoted family man, used a 12-gauge shotgun to slay his wife, two children, his wife's two parents, his own mother, and finally himself.

The mass slayings took place in his seven-room home on Sedgewick road here Friday afternoon, about the time Bauer was due to drive his family to Florida for a two week vacation.

A horrified neighbor discovered the scene of carnage early Saturday afternoon.

Two brothers of Bauer's wife, Florence Alice, 36, have taken over arrangements for the joint funeral and burial tomorrow. They are Albert and Unique Neuber Jr., of Bayonne.

Bauer, a civil engineer, worked as an inspector of road material for New York state. He and his family had lived in the $21,500 ranch type home for four years.

When police arrived at the house, they found Bauer dead in the bedroom with the pump shotgun at his side.

His brunette wife lay in the hallway between the bedroom and bathroom, killed at close range by two blasts apparently as she tried to flee.

Their 5-year-old daughter, Elizabeth Jane, was slumped on the floor of the dinette, still clutching a half eaten sandwich.

Her brother, Peter David, 20 months old, was sprawled a few feet away.

Mrs. Bauer's father, Unique C. Neuber Sr., 66, of nearby Lake Parsippany, lay face up on a living room rug. Mrs. Neuber was stretched out on a chair.

Bauer's own mother, Emma, was dead in another bedroom. The 84-year-old bedridden woman was due to be left at a nursing home Friday afternoon for the duration of the family's stay in Florida.

New Restaurant Planned

Gov. Clinton Market Expansion to Start

Renovation work on property at 765-771 Broadway for an addition to the Governor Clinton Market, estimated to cost $150,000, and the establishment of a new restaurant at the corner of Broadway and St. James street will begin within a couple weeks, according to an announcement today by John DeGasperis and Louis "Chic" Provenzano who recently purchased the property.

THE PROPERTY, which housed the Hofbrau, 9 St. James street, a barber shop, and floor covering store, was purchased from Albert and Pauline Kreisig. A men's clothing store, which now adjoins the present market, will also be utilized to provide additional market space.

Present plans, Mr. DeGasperis and Mr. Provenzano said, call for an addition to the food market in the building where the Hofbrau is now located while Mr. Provenzano will open a new, modern restaurant at the corner of Broadway and St. James street.

MR. DEGASPERIS said it is hoped to increase the market area to "three times its present size and 'double' the parking area which is located in the rear of the market. He said the Hofbrau building will be used to install larger coolers, which can handle a carload of beef, a large cutting room "and more space in every department."

It will be the second time within four years that the market has been increased in size.

The market was established by Mr. DeGasperis in 1926 and renovated as a "super market" in 1952.

THE HOFBRAU, which is 26 years old, has been operated by Mr. Provenzano for the past 12 years. He formerly operated Chic's Rendezvous in Glasco and the new restaurant at 765 Broadway will bear the same name. Mr. Provenzano said the restaurant will be modern in every detail and specialize "in certain dishes."

Mr. Provenzano, who is well known as a sponsor of sports teams and as a drummer who has performed with his novelty act for many charitable causes, began his musical career in 1929.

HE WAS A MEMBER of a band then operated by Johnny Ferraro, now a well-known bowling alley proprietor. Mr. Provenzano operated Chic's Rendezvous in Glasco for ten years, from 1935 to 1945.

Mr. DeGasperis has operated the Governor Clinton Market at its present location for the past 30 years. With the present rate of expansion in the area, Mr. DeGasperis said the market's shopping facilities must be increased to handle the store traffic.

"WE INTEND to triple the size of the present market," Mr. DeGasperis said, "and enlarge all departments still serving the public with a choice line of meats for which we have become famous."

Parking facilities will be doubled, he said, and customers still will be offered the added convenience of having an entrance to the market off the parking lot.

Dulles Out To Greet Britisher

Bulganin Move Is Propaganda

Washington, Jan. 30 (P)—British Prime Minister Eden came to Washington today for strategy talks with President Eisenhower on combatting communism in Asia and the Middle East. They also will seek a formula for peace in Palestine in three days of conferences.

Eden landed at National Airport at 11:15 a. m. EST aboard the Presidential Plane Columbine III in London-like weather.

THE PRESIDENT's plane picked him up in New York where the Prime Minister arrived this morning aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth.

Secretary of State Dulles headed the delegation on hand at the airport to greet Eden.

There was a U. S. Army Honor Guard, carrying the American and British flags side by side, and riflemen stood at attention in a giant rectangle about the plane.

There had been a steady rain all morning.

THERE WAS no band and there were no guns on hand to do formal honors. A British embassy spokesman said when Eden was last here, as foreign minister, in 1954 there were no salutes fired and no band for Prime Minister Churchill with whom he came at that time.

The spokesman said that Eden had sent word he would like the same arrival arrangements as those made for Churchill.

At a news conference, before debarking from the Queen Elizabeth, Eden termed "admirable" the President's reply to Soviet Premier Bulganin's proposal for a 20-year peace pact.

BULGANIN'S MOVE was regarded here as a propaganda effort and an attempt to steal a march on the Eden-Eisenhower conferences even before they began.

Eisenhower turned down the Bulganin proposal Saturday in a conciliatory letter designed to smash the idea of a two-way deal between Moscow and Washington while keeping open his personal contact with Bulganin.

Eisenhower released his and Bulganin's letters Saturday to try to get the Soviet move as far to one side as possible prior to Eden's arrival. The two were sure to discuss the proposal and assess Soviet motives, however.

EDEN CROSSED the Atlantic by ship arriving in New York. He arranged to fly to Washington aboard Eisenhower's private plane so that he and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd might lunch with Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles at the White House.

British and American officials have done much spade work for the talks, particularly on the Middle Eastern situation. Two weeks ago they decided it was essential to get Israel and the Arab states into active negotiations early this year if the Middle East is to be saved from a crisis later on.

Four City Mishaps Cause Injury to 7 on Weekend

Seven persons were injured in four city traffic mishaps over the weekend and one of them resulted in an arrest.

A two-car collision at Washington and Lucas avenue at 11:31 a. m., Sunday brought the heaviest injury toll and a seven-week-old infant was reported "shaken up."

Two others were hurt on East Chester street at 6:50 p. m., Sunday and Raymond Yerry, 29, of 214 Hasbrouck avenue, was arrested by Joseph Hoffman, of 245 East Chester street, on a reckless driving charge. City Judge Raymond J. Mino today put the case over to Feb. 6.

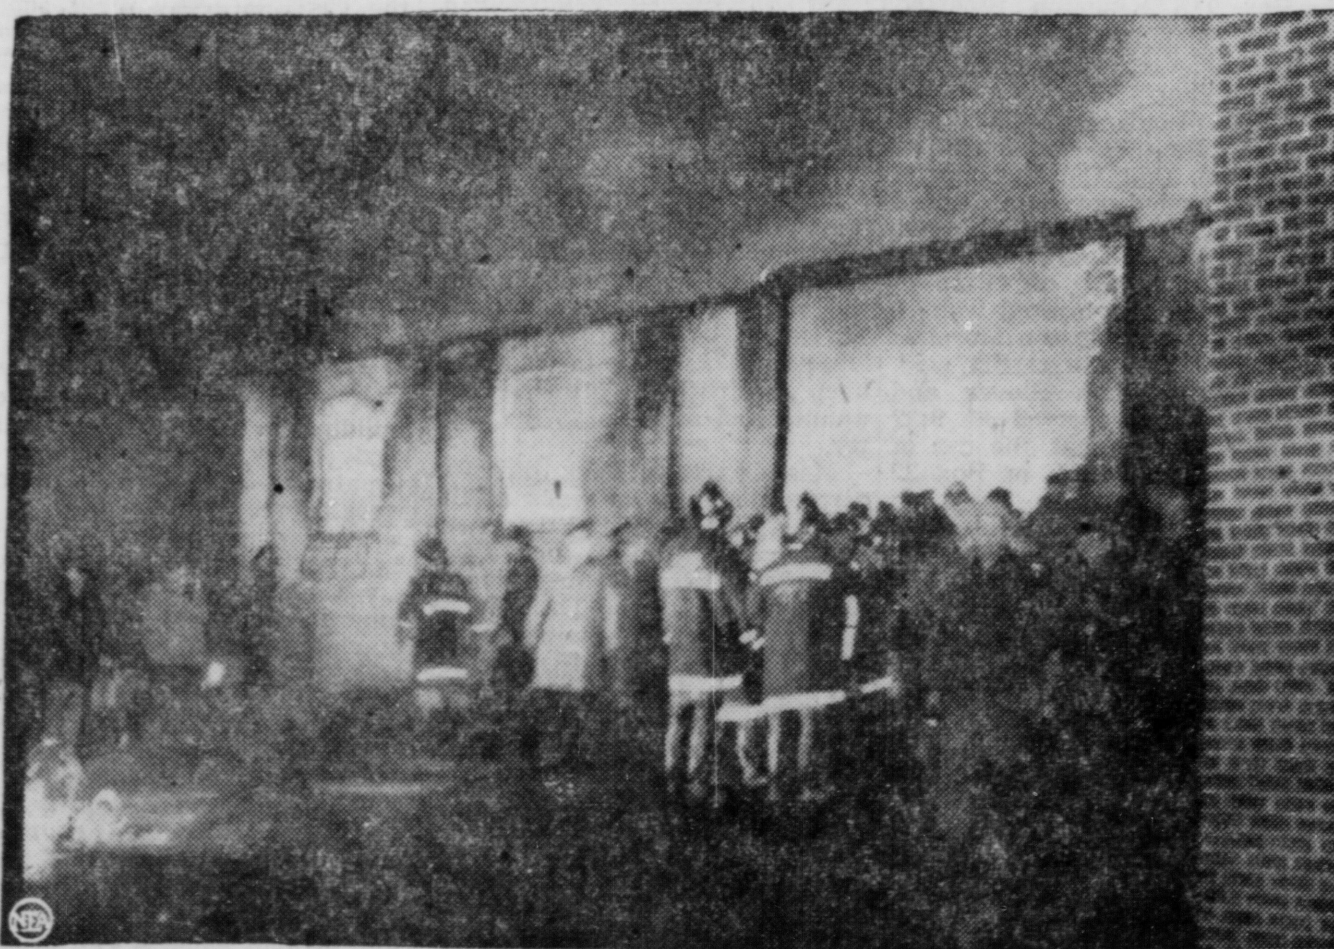

Officers Anthony Turk and Gerard McCloskey said both the Hoffman and Yerry cars were headed south on East Chester street and collided at a point near Sylvester street.

Edward Fitzgerald, 78, of 245 East Chester street, suffered a broken collar bone and Mrs. Hoffman reported a head injury. They were taken to the Benedictine Hospital in a Schultz ambulance. Both cars were towed from the scene.

Officers Bernard Fowler and Raymond Wells, reporting on the uptown mishap, said both vehicles were headed south on Washington avenue, one driven by Kenneth Breitenbecker, 33, of 1 Becket street, and the other by Kyriakos Pafitis, 21, of 30-69 43rd street, Astoria.

Martin Nylam, Frederick Scott, A. J. Bruckert, Milton Grover, Walter Perret, and Miss Catherine M. Murphy, board members. Annual reports by Dr. Bibby and Mrs. Charlotte Peck, executive director of the CP Center, reflected on the expanded program, physical improvements at the center, formation of a medical-professional advisory conference, increased public education and a sound financial basis for 1955, with predictions of more services and added professional staff for the coming year.

Dr. Bibby expressed gratitude for the constant volunteer work done by officers and members of the board, the volunteer drivers, organized by Mrs. Allan Hanstein, the campaign workers and the public in general who made possible the success of the financial campaign for 1955, and to Mrs. Devall Dunbar for her organizational activities in the county.

RECEIPTS FROM contributions totaled $20,177.24 while 1955 expenses were $17,731.47. Next year's budget must include the services of an Occupational Therapist and another Speech Therapist in order to keep pace with the growing community and services at the Center.

Mrs. Charlotte Peck, director, giving a resume of work at the Center for 1955, noted the gratifying cooperation of other agencies: The Ulster County Health Department, under Dr. Dudley Hargrave; the nursing staff, Miss Esther Schisla; the welfare department, Miss Rose Feeney; Catholic Charities, Miss Clara Kelley; the New York Department of Education; the Kingston Lions and Kiwanis Clubs, responsible for the construction of the new hearing conservation room; the TB and Health Association, the "50" Club, and the medical advisory and professional staffs.

IN CLOSING, Dr. Bibby stressed the difficulty of clarifying for the public such a term ess and a social hour was enjoyed. Those present were Mrs. L. Herring, Mrs. Henry Osborn, Mrs. S. T. Van Aken, Mrs. Marion Clark, Mrs. Charles Neice, Mrs. Terpening, Miss Anna Wood, Mrs. Samuel P. Tinney and Miss Annie Terpening.

Lake Katrine Man Hurt In Sawkill Road Mishap

Stanley James Benter, 28, of Lake Katrine, was hurt shortly before midnight when his 1942 passenger car skidded out of control and hit a tree on the Sawkill road, about a mile north of Kingston, it was reported by Kingston state police.

Mr. Benter reportedly suffered lacerations of the left forehead and left knee and a bruised left hip when his car traveling north about 30 to 40 MPH, skidded on ice on a left curve, went off the highway on the right side and hit a tree.

Trooper H. S. Rhodes reported that the car was a total wreck. He said Mr. Benter told him he would see his own physician.

investigation of crime and in charge of homicide investigations.

Sergeant Reilly remained with the BCI until his retirement. He was assigned to the Kingston sub-station on his appointment to the BCI, which is the "plain clothes" members of the state police force and remained there until 1943. Shortly after Thomas E. Dewey became governor, Sergeant Reilly was one of the men selected for special assignment under the Morlin Commission investigation of Workmen's Compensation. He worked in New York city as a special investigator for that commission for a year, returning to the Lake Katrine station a year later. He was stationed at the Lake Katrine sub-station until 1947 when he was transferred to the Highland station as BCI sergeant at that post.

ON JANUARY 1, 1949, he returned to the Kingston station and has been attached to that station since. His service in Ulster county has been continuous since 1929, except for the period he was doing special investigation in New York city, and he is considered one of the best qualified officers who knows Ulster county from one end to the other.

Prior to entering the troopers he was engaged in construction work, being associated with the New York Foundation Company during the construction of the Central Hudson plant at Rifton. On retirement he will become associated with the Miron Lumber Company, doing public relations work.

Sergeant Reilly resides at Eddyville. He was married to Margaret Mooney, an Ulster county girl, in 1932 and they have one son, William J. Reilly, a senior at Siena College.

Reassignment has been made to replace Sergeant Reilly but it is expected one of the candidates may be a local boy, Sergeant Robert Quick of Port Ewen who is presently assigned to the BCI unit in Ferndale.

Israeli-Arab peace it is difficult to see what actions can be taken effectively to block the spread of Communist influence and Soviet power in that petroleum center of the world. The Eden talks constitute Eisenhower's first major activity involving contacts with someone outside the American government since his heart attack last September. He last met Eden at the Summit Conference in Geneva in July. Bulganin and French Premier Edgar Faure also took part there.

British and American informants say their chiefs will discuss every problem of common interest they have in the world.

Japs Pledge Aid

Tokyo, Jan. 30 (AP)—Japan's two top leaders today pledged cooperation with the United States and the anti-Communist world, a drive against communism at home and efforts to roll back some of the changes wrought by defeat and occupation. In almost identical words in policy speeches to the Diet (Parliament), Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama and Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu said friendship with the United States would be a keystone of national policy as Japan gropes toward a more dominant role in world affairs.

Eden-Ike Parley May Shed Light On Puzzles Worrying Businessmen

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—British Prime Minister Eden's arrival today to talk over world policies with President Eisenhower may shed some light on three of the puzzles worrying American businessmen:

1. The talk about Russia's planning economic warfare in world markets, and all the new trade and political problems that could spawn.

2. The olive branch Russia has just extended with its other hand, and all the economic uncertainties that would bring, on the off chance the branch has real leaves.

3. The dispute over more American aid to friendly nations, and all the turmoil that inspires among politicians, American exporters and importers, and American taxpayers.

UNTIL RECENTLY talk about Russian plans for economic warfare have been pooh-poohed. There is still great doubt about her ability to make good.

But American businessmen are paying a little more attention now because of two things:

1. Russia has been making tempting offers to Far Eastern nations. She has made barter deals in the Middle East, trading excess military equipment for cotton and the like. She has been wooing Latin America—where United States is so strong—with offers she may or may not be able to fulfill.

2. Russia has recently announced a new five-year plan with stress on the production of heavy industry—which makes goods the military can use, but also goods that could be exported if that serves the Soviet world plans better.

AT PRESENT Russia's industrial production capacity is believed to be less than half as great as that of the United States. Her 1955 steel production, for example, is thought to have been 45 million metric tons. That is about 49 million American tons of 2,000 pounds each. American mills turned out a record 117 million tons last year.

But the disturbing fact is that since the war Russia's industrial output has increased at a notable rate. She is still way behind the United States but she appears to be closing the gap a little.

THE NEW PLAN calls for her industrial capacity to have increased by 1960 to within about two-thirds the size of the American. The steel gain won't be quite at that ratio. Russia aims at a 75 million short ton capacity in 1960, and American capacity is already 128 million tons.

In other fields, especially in nuclear energy, her plans call for pulling much closer to the American potential.

Her schools and colleges stress the training of engineers and scientists—one of the raw materials of industrial progress.

WHILE NOT minimizing these Russian gains any longer, American businessmen stress this nation's superior position in any economic struggle that might develop.

In the past those who have traded with the Russians have often been disappointed—they tend to promise freely and deliver slowly if at all. And American industrial capacity can be expanded too—and much faster than Russian, if necessary.

BUT SOVIET economic offers can be a weapon in the kind of world policy they are pursuing—just as another peace offensive could be. And the United States has tended to regard its foreign aid program as a sort of weapon too.

There's a chance that all three of these could come up in the talks at Washington, since they all could bear on each other, and on our foreign policy.

Dependable Budgeting

By FRANK TRIPP

Viewed on almost any street, it seems that today everybody has his own personal automobile. Of course that's far from true; wasn't even true of the bike in the Gay 90s, but you'll be surprised to hear that it is nearer true today of automobiles than it ever was of bicycles.

This is not to be a reminiscence of cycling days. It will be a glance into the gloom of "where do we go from here?"

Gloom, only in the sense that gloom is something we can't see through clearly; yet, so far at least, Americans have ultimately brushed gloom aside, through invention, resourcefulness and necessity. So, let's not worry too much about where we'll drive and park all of the cars ten years from now. Let's marvel at how we came this far—and dream that we can keep on going until every living son of us has his own personal car; veritable fleets of them in big families. And have the means to own them.

Note carefully that phrase "every living son of us," for, at the rate we are going, we are killing off much potential market at an alarming pace. Something better than slogans must be done about that. Or, maybe that's one way that nature plans to equalize the situation.

JULES VERNE, if still with us, might picture taking us off crowded highways by clothing us in magic slack-sized garments that would hoist us out of each other's way and deposit us safely where we want to go. It would read no more fantastic than did much that he wrote in his day—and has come to pass.

As things are, however, the wherewithal to get this dreamed of individual means of locomotion is the topic uppermost in more minds than is any other single problem of modern living. People will go without actual necessities to own an automobile; and with some reason. How else can they get to many places; for countless reasons; even to work? The geography and public transportation of vast communities have been completely transformed. People now often travel 30 miles each way to and from their jobs. They used to live three blocks from the plant or on a trolley line.

BACK WHEN CARS were strictly in the luxury class, and prices less than half of today's, I traded with a Buick dealer who had a unique system. Something like it is coming to life again in at least one spot.

I bought three cars from this far sighted gent, practically all at the same time. His deal was: "You buy this new Buick now. A year from now you get the new model Buick for this car and $290." The car was mine to do with as I liked, to pamper it or abuse it; just keep it running on four wheels.

Nobody could expect that deal today but, considering current prices, I read a newspaper ad lately that comes close to it and, in a way, accomplishes the same thing.

It is a copyrighted plan and lets an owner know almost to a dollar what his transportation will cost him; lets him create a dependable budget and not spend his life paying for "dead horses."

FOR YOUR old crate (or $599 cash) this guy gives you a new 1956 Chieftain model Pontiac sedan. With it you get both life and collision insurance, inspections, repairs, tire and battery service and oil and grease jobs for a year.

For this you pay $15.95 a week, and of course buy your own gasoline and license. The car is yours. By year's end you will have paid your old car and $829.40 for it; or, if all cash, a total of $1,428.40.

Out come the 1957 models. You drive in your 1956; drive out in a new 1957; an even swap, no more down payment; just the same $15.95 a week goes on as before. All of the mentioned service and extras also go with the new car.

Looking the thing in the face, some will be cheered, some will be shocked, to learn that about the cheapest they can hope to always own an average, new automobile is $16 a week, plus fuel, oil and incidentals.

At 10,000 miles a year it figures better than 14 cents a mile.

Wow! says you, but there you have it.

Of course it means marrying into an automobile family, but you know what it will cost to support the bride—and you can always get a divorce without going to Reno.

THE WORLD BANK

Banking is complex. International economics are equally complex. As a result, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development is scarcely known. Yet it is one of the most successful of the international agencies and it is actually running at a profit.

That foreign investments can bring substantial profit is important to understand as Congress begins to consider President Eisenhower's foreign aid program.

The World Bank has 58 member nations which have contributed funds amounting to a subscribed capital of over nine billion dollars. Its profitable lending operations have built up reserves of $195,000,000.

This money is borrowed by foreign countries. For instance, a loan of $61,000,000 went to Mexico for rehabilitating and modernizing its railroads. Italy received a $70,000,000 loan for developing new generating plants in her south. Peru borrowed $23,000,000 to irrigate 125,000 acres of uncultivated land and to finance the importing of farm equipment. Egypt expects the Bank to furnish funds for building its giant dam and power plant on the Nile River. Each of these projects is vital to the borrowing nation. Each is expected to be so successful that the loan will be repaid with interest.

Investments have been sound and the World Bank has become an important instrument for maintaining the prosperity which the world today is enjoying.

BOMBS STILL DANGEROUS

It has become popular, in some circles, to minimize the potential dangers of the hydrogen bomb. Some relatively well informed persons draw unwarranted conclusions from the fact that the radioactive fall-out from bomb tests thus far has been small. They imply that the H-bomb is really much over-rated as a destroyer.

Such people are fond of pointing out that the atomic energy commission has consistently downgraded the dangers of radiation. They quote, with an I-told-you-so air, the recent statement by AEC member Willard F. Libby that "the health hazards from the present rate of testing nuclear weapons is insignificant."

It is true that, so far as we now know, nuclear test explosives have not endangered the public health. It is probably true that many more tests could be made without polluting the air to any marked degree, though some scientists dispute this and others say, "We just don't know."

But it is important not to lose sight of the fact that, though remote test explosions may be harmless, this does not reduce the deadly potential of nuclear weapons. That is not scare talk; it is just common sense. However harmless a few isolated tests may be, a war involving hundreds or thousands of nuclear explosions would be many times more devastating than anything yet known.

FISH STILL IN POLITICS

Like a voice from the past is the announcement that Hamilton Fish would like to be a delegate to the Republican national convention. His ambition is opposed by the party organization of his congressional district, which succeeded in keeping him from this post in 1948 and 1952.

Fish, before World War I, was the isolationist leader in the House of Representatives. President Roosevelt in the 1940 campaign singled him out for attack, along with Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, later Speaker, and Bruce Barton, a New York advertising man who served briefly in Congress. The repetition of the cry, "Martin, Barton and Fish" was much used in that campaign, and may have contributed to the Roosevelt victory.

In 1944 Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, that year's Republican presidential candidate, repudiated Fish, who lost his seat. He has not been able to regain office since. Perhaps he will not unless his isolationist point of view regains some of its one-time popularity.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

REST AND REPOSE

What Theodore Roosevelt called the "Strenuous life," was a comparatively quiet way of living within the family. Since then we have been speeded up by enforced leisure. The 40-hour week leaves too many hours to fill and too little imagination goes into filling them. An old German, I know, has partly solved the problem of holding two jobs—two 40-hour week jobs—which does him no harm as a week has 168 hours.

I now loaf all but one hour a day. As I have never loafed before, I had no concept of how frightful such an ordeal can be, although I have been told that some of the government office-holders have evolved a method of loafing while appearing to work to keep the department payroll up to par to avoid cuts in the next budget. But prolonged doing nothing is degenerative of both the person and the spirit. To listen to radio or television by the hour is to fill time with chatter and noise. Noise is not a time-filler. It is only noise. I have never realized how ugly the human singing-voice can be if it is an uncultivated, untrained voice. I can only think of Lily Pons who is everlastingly beautiful and then some female comes on the radio which no musician can describe as soprano, mezzo-soprano, alto, or even a female bass. It is a loud sound, too loud for a hospital room. Whatever it is, it is not a filler of leisure and serves no good purpose. It would be better to work on the job during such hours.

The explanation for our bad hearts is that we strain them and tire them by working too hard. How hard is too hard? In the 39 years that I have been earning a living at this and related professions, I have never been tired of my work. But life has been tiring at times because it has seemed so futile. Wars and depressions and the scawagery of politicians, not only in this country but throughout the world in such an era, do tire and pain. One often must wonder how long the people of any country can accept the god-man worship for which Hitler set the pattern and which everybody has since copied.

It is humiliating to think that any one man is indispensable. What about all the rest of us? Are we not indispensable? It was fortunate for Soviet Russia that Lenin died so early; that ended the myth of the indispensable man in that country. When I was there in 1917-18, Lenin was regarded as indispensable; so was Trotsky. Stalin exiled Trotsky who was murdered in Mexico. The work went on.

As one lies here, one knows that nobody is indispensable nor that anyone, great or small, can literally hang on a thread and we might as well make the most of it while we may. One becomes so conscious of how little time there is to live while in a hospital, where those who enter are in peril and not all who exit are alive. And so one thinks about how we fill the void of leisure and how little we really do in this country to cultivate the mind and the sensibilities but sit, for hours, with legs stretched out listening to noisy, frowsy dames yell in atonalities or permit ourselves to be brain-washed by so-called commentators who in private conversation cannot speak an elevating phrase or an ennobling idea. There must be a better way to fill the leisure hours that a high standard of life and short hours of labor have brought to our people.

One lies here and thinks about such things and about what he himself has done with the years that were given him. I thought of that day in Petrograd in 1918 when I was told to be at a railroad station because I was going to leave. I was all that was left of the "Russian Daily News" and even that was nothing. A soldier stood outside the door; the paper was closed. As the train I was on went into Siberia to China, but no one knew whether it would get there. No one knew that it would ever reach any point. In fact, our locomotive was so often taken from us that we might have been left somewhere in the snow first to starve, then to freeze.

But somehow we managed. We, on the train, succeeded in reaching Chinese territory and some even went to their homes. I reached my home 13 years later. But it did happen.

And that too is something that one thinks about here, namely, that somehow the good Lord does look after us for a spell and we cling on to whatever we are doing, sure that there must be some use to it, no matter what way it is even possible to forgive the politicians their frightful waste in time, earnings and human life. That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.
DISCHARGED MENTAL PATIENTS

In my last article we discussed the need for public education about mental illness and the duty of the general practitioner to help in this as much as he can but the most important factor is the need of the physician to know his patient. This includes his fears, and vulnerabilities; his life goals and how he goes about achieving them; what he fears, loves and hates; where his breaking point appears to be, and what signs lead him into attack, flight, depression. How dangerous is he at his worst? Of course, everyone is so complex that all such information cannot be gathered but the doctor must make the effort, because the emotionally ill patient may endanger himself in many ways.

Suicide is spectacular but it is less common than the many everyday hazards. Patients may make unreasonable expenditures of money and fall into debt. They may expose themselves to injury through impulsiveness, inattention, or self-destructive urges. They may endanger the community by dangerous management of automobiles or other machinery, a need to exploit others or even assaultiveness, although these are less dangerous than community opinion assumes. The patient may endanger the mental health of his wife and children.

The physician has to assume a reasonable degree of responsibility for both patient and community and at times these interests may conflict. The easiest course is often to seek readmission of the patient to the hospital but this expedient may be a serious setback to the patient's rehabilitation and is justified only when the risk of leaving him out is real. Sometimes the threatening behavior may stop when the realistic dangers or consequences of his actions are pointed out to him with kindness. Sometimes quieting drugs or reassurance may reduce the pressure. Less dangerous outlets may be suggested such as bowling, boxing, walking, competitive games to take the place of aggressive tendencies.

Should recommitment to the mental hospital become necessary, it is to be hoped that there is a genuine interest and understanding between patient and physician to make this procedure as painless as possible. If the patient is unco-operative, he may have to be returned to the hospital under restraint but less forceful methods are so much more to be desired. Large doses of sedatives may minimize the unpleasantness of the transfer. Reassurance, kindness, and firm but friendly insistence are much better than lost tempers, deception or physical force.

We must keep in mind that throughout history the mentally ill have stirred anxiety and then hostility. One reason there is so little education in the field of mental health is that people feel anxious and prefer not to think about it. Our thinking is often limited by lifelong attitudes. There is a tendency to quickly recommit a disturbing fellow.

"Welcome to America, Mr. Eden"

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington—(NEA—Heard at the State Department)

"Know why John Foster Dulles is three times better than J. Edgar Hoover?"

"No, why?"

"Because, J. Edgar has only one Brinks to his credit."

LONG, LEAN and dignified Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass) barreled out of his home on a recent morning failing to note that a cold rain during the night had put a sheet of ice on his front steps.

In a maneuver which would have been rated magnificent if performed off a high board, his legs went over his head. He did a neat half-twist in the air and finally landed on the bottom step on the back of his neck with a loud crack.

A horrified female passerby rushed up to render first aid to the shaken senator. But he politely declined her help, quickly assembled himself in an upright position, and said:

"As you can see no damage has been done. Being a New Englander I am used to inclement weather."

MOHAMMED ALI, Pakistan ambassador, was the most relaxed, genial self the other night at a big reception he was throwing. For an hour he and Justice Douglas entertained the people around them swapping travel anecdotes.

The pair then adjourned to the fancy buffet and slowly devoured Samosa, spiced lamb and meat placed between small pieces of dough.

When the party finally broke up, Mohammed Ali drove to George Washington Hospital for a look at his brand-new son who was born while the party was still in progress.

While everyone tries to be that calm and casual about the birth of offspring, Mohammed Ali can be more blasé about such things than most. Because he has two wives, one here and one in New York. It's strictly legal, too, under the laws of his country.

SEN. ESTES KEFAUVER (D-Tenn) was getting in some airborne politicking on an American Airlines flight recently until the pilot broke it up.

Seems a passenger recognized the lanky Democratic presidential hopeful in a rear seat of the plane and went back to ask him questions. A dozen or so other passengers crowded in the aisle to listen.

After about five minutes of this the pilot came back and informed the rally that the crowd in the rear made the tail of the plane heavy, that it was "mush-lax" through the air and might be late as a result.

Kefauver replied that inasmuch as he was an ardent supporter of flying safety—especially in planes in which he was a passenger—he agreed that the meeting should break up. It did.

COCKTAIL CHATTER:
Guest: Mr. Secretary of Interior, may I present my friend Earl Albright.

Secretary of Interior: Why it's a great pleasure, Mr. Albright. Albright: You might not think so when I tell you I'm a Democrat.

S. or I: That depends, where you from?

A. Georgia.

S. or I: It's a pleasure after all. Southern Democrats are okay.

FRIEND OF OURS (female) found an open purse with some big bills showing, apparently deserted in the crowded ladies' powder room at a hotel here.

In a rather loud voice she held it aloft and said:

"Does this belong to anybody? You can't just leave money around with all the crooks and politicians there are in this town."

Up stepped pretty Nancy Kefauver to claim the purse, with her flaming red hair matched only by the color of our friend's face.

WHILE TRAFFIC was heaviest on Connecticut avenue in front of the Mayflower Hotel, a big black convertible pulled up at an angle and stopped five feet from the curb. Obvious to the traffic snarl this maneuver created, the tall, handsome driver shut off his engine and strode nonchalantly into the hotel.

When a driver of another car yelled for someone to call a cop, the doorman merely pointed to the license of the convertible and shrugged his shoulders.

It had a congressional tag. The vehicle belonged to Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.).

Today in World Affairs

Democracies Seen Hesitant As in Day of Hitler Peril

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 30—These are dangerous times in the world. The news dispatches read strangely like those that appeared just a few months before World War 2 broke out.

There are the same sinister moves by aggressor governments.

There is the same reckless partisanship inside the national legislatures of the democracies, thus encouraging the aggressor governments to think that peace-at-any-price is the underlying policy of all political parties in America, France and Britain.

There is the same duplicity behind the scenes as the aggressor builds up armament while piously proclaiming peaceful motives.

THERE IS the same cry that the democracies are unprepared militarily and that they are sacrificing guns for butter even as the plaintive call comes for more air power to match the enemy's growing strength.

Perhaps the foregoing will strike a note of reminiscence to Sir Anthony Eden, England's Prime Minister, who this week confers here with President Eisenhower. For the famous British diplomat played a conspicuous role in the pre-war years and saw the gathering storm from the inside of the Chamberlain government before he resigned dramatically as foreign secretary in February, 1938. Ahead lay the appeasement of Munich in September, 1938, and then all-out war in September, 1939.

Few men have had such an intimate experience with the chicanery of totalitarianism, particularly the Russian maneuvers and tricks, as has Anthony Eden. Few in parliamentary life know so well how foreign policy can be made a football of politics to the detriment of a nation.

MANY AMERICANS probably have forgotten that as late as six months before the war broke out, Prime Minister Chamberlain, already disillusioned about the empty promises given by Hitler at Munich, proposed that a draft law be passed, but was met by the bitter opposition of Clement Attlee and the Socialist Labor party. Attlee on April 27, 1939, told the House of Commons:

"We are opposed to conscription. It will weaken the country. If there is to be a gesture, it should be the conscription of wealth. There is no need for conscription so far as men are concerned. The navy and the air force are up to strength and there are no arms for more men."

All this has a familiar ring—political parties seeking partisan advantage by playing on the emotions of an uninformed citizenry. Here was Chamberlain, on the "brink of war," struggling to make a show of firmness to Hitler only to be frustrated by a party in opposition that was strong enough to threaten defeat at an election perhaps on a peace-at-any-price basis if the Prime Minister didn't accede.

IT WAS THIS state of affairs which caused Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary until 1939 and later a member of the war cabinet, to write in retrospect:

"The truth was forced upon us that until the people were faced with the stark dangers of actual war, it was impossible to introduce war measures of production and organization, and to form a national government for a single purpose."

These same comments could be written today about the divided government in the United States. One party controls Congress and the other party controls the White House.

DESPITE THE strong voice of Sen. George, many Democrats in Congress keep up a constant sniping which inevitably must encourage the shrewd men in the Kremlin to believe that this is the time for them to muddy the waters here. Hitler used the same strategy with his "peace" offer just before each act of aggression. In fact he proposed and Chamberlain signed in 1938 a statement saying the two nations had agreed "never to go to war with each other."

The latest effort of the Democrats is to put the Eisenhower administration in an embarrassing position because it has rejected the same kind of offer—a treaty proposed by Bulganin to eliminate war between Russia and America. Some of the Democratic spokesmen in Congress are saying about the President's reply that they were "not consulted on details" as if direct negotiation was ever a constitutional prerogative of Congress—while other Democrats say they don't like "the way it was handled."

What does it all mean? What can be done about it? Public opinion which transcends petty politics can demand the answer. Hitler understood only one language just as do the dictators in the Kremlin. That's military force plus economic force. Hitler was allowed almost until the outbreak of war in September, 1939, to trade freely and get supplies for his armament machine from every country.

THE SOONER the free world begins to sacrifice pounds, francs and dollars of trade and cuts off raw materials from the enemy, the sooner the military power of the United States and its allies is built up at whatever cost is required, the sooner will there be a feeling of real security that a world war can be prevented.

For the assumption that the Kremlin would not dare to start a world war is as spurious as the assumption so often made early in 1939 that Hitler wouldn't dare take on both Britain and France. It was Molotov who, seeing the weakness and vacillation and party politics inside Britain and France, chose to carry on a two-faced negotiation first with London and then Berlin which resulted in the Nazi-Communist alliance. Today the same Molotov sits behind Bulganin.

AMERICA'S indecision too in those pre-war days was an encouragement to Hitler. Even after the fall of France and after Russia had entered the European war in June 1941—and just a few weeks before Pearl Harbor—the House of Representatives almost defeated the extension of the draft bill. It was passed by a single vote on Aug. 13, 1941. Hitler had gambled that he could win before American intervention—if it ever came—could become effective.

These are perilous times especially since this is an atomic age, when political bickering and procrastination can be fatal. It is to be hoped that the confidences between Eden and Eisenhower will help to strengthen allied solidarity and will bring forth a fearless definition of America's objectives. This definition was sadly lacking in 1939. A clear definition of policy for the United States today is again being befuddled by selfish politics.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Joe Kennedy's boy, Jack, the junior senator from Massachusetts, has written a book called "Profiles in Courage" about senators who voted bravely in defiance of stupid, whimsical and brutal public opinion. Jack's physical courage was demonstrated in battle at sea and I am in no mood to insinuate that anyone lacks moral courage who made the desperate decision that he made to risk an operation on his spine against the advice of some of the best surgeons in the world.

I must say, however, that Jack should explain why he failed to cast his vote for or against the flagrant conspiracy of the left wing of the Eisenhower party to humiliate and destroy Joe McCarthy for exposing the conduct of Eisenhower's friend and political patron in the Roosevelt administration, General George Marshall. Young Kennedy was in a hospital at the time and the chances were slim that he would walk again or even leave the room alive. He is a shrewd politician, rather on the cold-blooded side, and he knew a plot was going to give McCarthy the business for exposing treachery in our government.

The gaudiest exploit of the cabal to date had been the clumsy campaign to make it appear that legitimate religious bodies were indignant at truthful charges written by J. B. Matthews, the original fellow-traveler, and published in the American Mercury. Matthews was about to start work as chief investigator for McCarthy's committee and the object of the cabal was to discredit him, throw him out and thus reflect on McCarthy. Matthews had written that many of the clergy were either Communists or dupes and he was absolutely right. The protesting groups were truly political and were religious only in their titles.

Jack and Joe Kennedy both knew the inner story of this frameup and Jack might fairly have included McCarthy among the heroes of his book, for he owes his seat in the Senate to a definite but negative decision of Joe McCarthy. The Republican party in Massachusetts begged McCarthy to go into the "Irish" districts and exhort these people, traditional Democrats, to vote for Lodge. Being "Irish" and Catholic, McCarthy could have helped Henry Cabot Lodge keep his seat by lauding Lodge and reminding the voters of the red-herring policy of Jack Kennedy's Democratic party.

McCarthy went as far as Connecticut. He told a friend he was under pressure to help Lodge.

The friend said, "let the bum get knocked off. Go on out to Indiana and help Bill Jenner. He is a real Republican and he needs your help."

McCarthy spoke for William Purtell of Connecticut in Bridgeport and Danbury and gave Purtell the impetus that put him over, again the "Irish" (Continued on Page 13, Col. 8)

156th Battalion Highly Praised At Local Review

Members of 156th Field Artillery Battalion stationed in Kingston and Poughkeepsie under the command of Lieutenant Edward J. Schrowang of Kingston were highly commended and praised this week for the outstanding state of training during a review this week by representatives of the Commanding General of the First Army at Kingston Headquarters Battery.

Lt. Ashdown, commanding Battery A of the 156th, presented his organization showing a record of 100 per cent attendance and a training program well advanced in unit fire capabilities and effectiveness.

BATTERY A along with Battery B and Battery C in Poughkeepsie commanded by Captain Steingenthaler and Captain Martell presented Heavy Artillery eight inch Howitzer self propelled batteries that came out of inspection with a rating well above the average for units of this type.

Battery B with 100 per cent of its strength present earned high praise for its efforts. Service Battery in Kingston with only one man absent from the test, and he a patient in a hospital, showed its support capabilities toward the entire Battalion.

Led by Lt. Nelson Houghtaling, this organization created a most favorable impression with its advanced state of training due to its high degree of "seasoned personnel"—the turn-over rate in this unit being far below the average. Trained men re-enlisting in yearly occurrence with Service Battery. The Medical Detachment in command of Captain R. Jones presented its usual 100 per cent attendance. Although small in numbers this unit showed its capabilities to handle the physical well-being of the Battalion personnel.

battalion commander, gave high praise for the work and effort displayed by his staff officers. Inspecting officers commented upon the superior supervision, direction and coordination displayed by the staff and the results shown at battery level.

THROUGHOUT THE inspection the team made frequent comments regarding the close supervision given the unit by the junior officers and the high degree of instruction rendered by the many non-commissioned officers of the battalion.

Col. Harkin stressed to the First Army inspection team the fact that results shown were not simply a matter of "one night a week drill attendance." The many evenings, other than drill nights that the officers and non-commissioned officers have spent in preparation to train the men has been done voluntarily on their part.

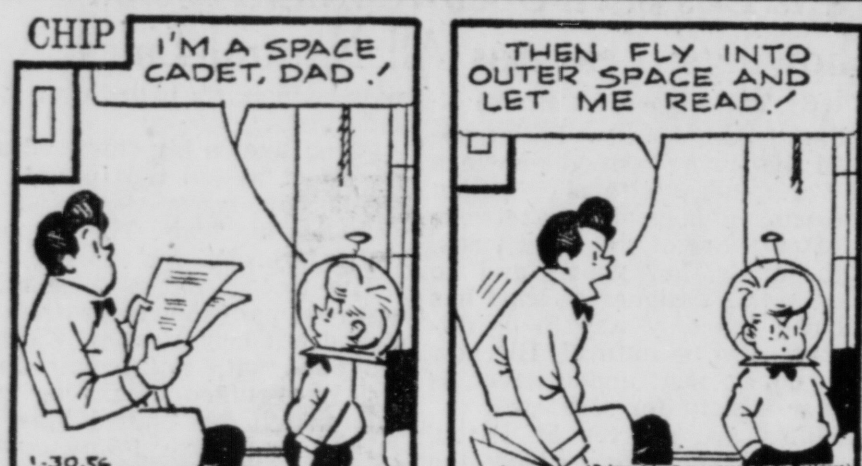

THE MEN OF the unit have improvised and built many of their own training aids used in classroom instruction periods. Supply procedures, bookkeeping, and administrative work are the same as in the regular services and can not be accomplished in a simple two-hour one night a week training session, thus many officers and non-commissioned officers report to their units on other evenings in an effort to supervise the many details.

New Type Train Tries 161 Miles On $10 Fuel Stock

Chicago, Jan. 30 (AP)—A lightweight, low-slung Talgo-type train, which will become the first in America to go into actual revenue service, was to make a 161-mile run from Chicago to Peoria, Ill. today.

Officials of the Rock Island Railroad calculated in advance only $10 worth of diesel fuel would be needed for the trip, compared with the $29 fuel bill for conventional equipment.

THE SWITCH to new-type equipment is part of the effort by the nation's railroads to return to contention for the travel dollar and end passenger traffic revenue deficits totaling nearly 700 million dollars annually.

Aboard on today's run were members of the press, radio, television and other guests.

The four-car train, which is called the jet rocket, will go into regular service between Chicago and Peoria Feb. 1.

The New York Central and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroads also have ordered Talgo type trains.

THE PRINCIPAL features of the new train are lower operating costs, a low center of gravity that contributes to greater riding comfort and guided axles that eliminate a tendency of the wheels to "climb" on curves.

The train is designed to take smoothly at 95 miles an hour curves limiting conventional equipment to 70.

The new train is a modernized, more versatile version of the original Talgo-type trains that have been operating in Spain for six years over the mountainous terrain between Madrid and the French border.

THE NEW TRAIN'S cars each are made up of interchangeable three-jointed units that literally "bend" on curves, reducing side-sway.

The cost per seat of the train is $2,300 compared with $3,800 per seat of conventional equipment. The new train cost $788,000.

Including the locomotive, the jet rocket weighs 451,000 pounds compared with 807,100 pounds for conventional equipment.

The train is 2 feet 8 inches lower than a conventional train and the floor level is only 26 inches above the rails.

THE TRAIN was designed by engineers of the Spanish firm Patentes Talgo and ACF Industries Engineers. ACF Industries built the coaches and the 1,200 horsepower diesel electric locomotive was built by the Electro-Motive Division of General Motors.

The train is geared to 102 miles an hour but a prototype reached 111 miles an hour on a test run.

The initial service schedule calls for a 2½ hour run between Peoria and Chicago with several intermediate stops, but officials say this may be stepped up later.

Davidson Asks AEC To Plan Power Sale

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Rep. Davidson (D-N.Y.) has asked the Atomic Energy Commission to make "immediate arrangements" to sell surplus electric power at the West Milton, N. Y., intermediate reactor plant to "interested preference utilities."

In a letter to AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss, Davidson said the commission's granting of a contract to the Niagara Mohawk Power Co. was not proper.

The AEC contracted last July to sell Niagara Mohawk all West Milton surplus power for 3 mills a kilowatt hour.

The contract expired in October and the preference utilities, which include rural electric cooperatives, municipally owned electric systems and other public power groups, were granted until Feb. 1 to make arrangements to take the power.

"The self-satisfied refusal of Niagara Mohawk to make suitable (and in fact profitable to it) arrangements for wheeling the West Milton power to preference utilities cannot be allowed to interfere with the enforcement of the atomic energy act," Davidson said.

Investor Forum Harry C. France

WILL TO SPECULATE Present tax laws are perfectly conceived to encourage speculation. Yet there are many executives and owners of business who are not doing so. Thousands of America's ablest corporation officers, professional men and prosperous small enterprise proprietors are paying personal income taxes ranging from 60 to 90 per cent a year.

Whether these people should buy risk values for the sake of capital gains should depend on their own inclinations and temperaments. Economically, they have every reason to do so.

Suppose an executive who is paying 75 percent of everything he makes to Uncle Sam in taxes decides to set aside $25,000 for speculation. What if he loses it all? Well, he can write most of it off and the loss will not disturb him much.

But why should he take chances? For the simple reason that if he is successful he can keep 75 percent of the gains.

Speculation is of all grades and descriptions. Some successful risk takers plunge heavily. They put cash on the line knowing that either they stand to lose all or to gain 1,000 percent or more. Some large fortunes have been made in these situations.

Recently in this column I mentioned a speculator who bought 500 shares of Hotel Commodore, New York City, $7 cumulative preferred stock when it was selling at receivership prices — 5 cents on the dollar.

No one should ever engage in this kind of speculation who cannot afford to lose everything. But, as I have indicated above, income tax payers handling from $20,000 to $500,000 to Uncle Sam every year have sound economic reasons to do so.

Real estate lends itself to such operations. Here in New York in recent years substantial properties have been bought on a short-string.

A 40-family, 15-story Riverside Drive apartment was bought for $50,000 cash from a leading insurance company that had foreclosed the first mortgage and taken title to the property. The syndicate buying the house didn't put up a dime of its own money. Rather, it sold a $100,000 five-year second mortgage for $50,000 cash. The equity money was borrowed.

Expenses were cut $20,000 a year and this money amortized the second mortgage. This year the second mortgage will have been paid off and the syndicate, operating on no margin, will own a fine property. My guess is that it will sell the property for $500,000 above the first mortgage and pocket capital gains of $375,000.

DOZEN STOCKS—There are a dozen excellent stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange that heavy tax payers should buy on margin for the sake of capital gains.

Such a speculator should decide how much capital he can afford to put into that kind of risk taking. Then, above all, he should determine what vehicles of speculation he should buy. That is extremely important.

A $2 stock saturated with risk might go to $10 in a year or two and a 500 per cent capital gain would result.

On the other hand, he might choose to speculate more conservatively by buying a $50 stock that he knows is underpriced.

And were he to buy 1,000 shares on margin, he might decide when he can sell 700 shares for what 1,000 cost to take 300 shares out of the market.

Alert brokers are always anxious to talk with such speculators.

THE FORUM—(Q) "What good grade stocks would you speculate in just now?"

Harry C. France will answer one letter each week through this column. If you have any investment questions, write in care of this newspaper.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Thirteenth of Suit Is Setter

BY OSWALD JACOBY Written for NEA Service

Some husbands and wives don't get along well at the bridge table as partners, but a few spouse combinations are among the best in the game. Among these are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Seewald of South St. Paul who will be welcoming players this weekend to the tournament in St. Paul.

A simple play that Mr. and Mrs. Seewald recently executed at a tournament won a fine score. Many experts missed it.

Mrs. Seewald opened the king of diamonds and continued with the ace when her husband played the encouraging eight at the first trick. Leo completed his echo by playing the three of diamonds at the second trick, so Mrs. Seewald led her last diamond.

Leo took the third trick with the queen of diamonds and looked around for one more trick to defeat the contract. Many experts led a club at this moment, hoping that West had a high enough club to win a trick. At these tables declarer got to dummy twice for trump finesses, easily winning the rest of the tricks.

Leo Seewald saw no reason to count on his partner for the ace of clubs when he needed only the ten of hearts in Mrs. Seewald's hand to defeat the contract. He merely led his last diamond.

Declarer had to ruff with the

Paris Designer Opens Spring Fashion Showings; Features All Natural Lines

(By The Associated Press)

Paris, Jan. 30 (AP)—Patou opened the spring fashion showings in Paris today with a collection featuring a normal silhouette. After years of flattened busts, high waists, low waists and no waists, this designer at least has decided the only way to be different is to be natural. His new line, curvy, neat and discreet, is rather a sight for sore eyes.

Skirts are shorter at Patou, but this is nothing to blow the bugles about. Knees are still covered by several decent inches, and Patou is just catching up with Dior's length.

Since dress designers seldom put all their eggs in one basket, Patou puts in some bloused-over tops that still have an air of 1920, and bloused-back coats that have a hip-high back-belt. But in general, his clothes are small-waisted and well-fitted.

Skirts go in for flare, by way of pleats or princess panels. Most jackets are very short, some having no basques at all (the basque is the part of the jacket that continues below the waistline). Many jackets and some coats are short-sleeved.

The corselet belt, medium-wide and tucked, with scarf ends, reappears to slenderize waistlines that have been for many seasons stripped of any belt at all.

White and grey, off-whites and beiges are leading daytime colors, with reddish corals and brilliant turquoise blues making a bright splash. Prints are of moire or watered-silk persuasion, with blurry, flowery effects predominating. There are a lot of taffetas, taffeta-thin woolsens, floating chiffons and laces, with a sprinkling of checks, stripes and dots. Oddly enough, these are small and discreet for day wear, getting bolder for evening.

Highly popular with Patou are neck-to-hem flat panels in front, often buttoned down each side for a double-breasted-all-the-way look. In fact, buttons are plentiful, both useful and decorative.

Some very loose box coats have decollete collarless necklines and short sleeves. But the fitted princess coat, over the fitted princess dress is more popular. There are some all-over pleated dresses, and many pleated skirts. Short, strapless formals have skirts belled over stiff underkirts.

Patou likes a big bow or drapery effect across the tummy, or else a bow below the waistline with floating ends. There's pink and pale orchid for evening.

The typical hat is a pudding basin or baby bowler with a V nipped out center front. Cloches are piled with multicolor flowers. Lace-ruffled stocks or cravats match lace-ruffled hats.

In general, the Patou collection is a young and handsome one, with a natural line that may or may not be followed by other designers this season.

When Friend Is Repairman

A reader tells me: "The husband of a friend of ours does television repairing as a side job. The other evening he was at our house repairing our television when some friends of mine came to visit me. I did not introduce him to these friends simply because I thought an introduction was unnecessary as he was not there on a social call. However, his wife called me the next day and said her husband was very much hurt because I did not introduce him to my friends and told her that he thought I was ashamed of him. Was an introduction necessary under the circumstances? I would very much appreciate your opinion on this matter."

I'm sorry to have to say that your behavior was very unkind. Had he been a stranger entering your house to do a job, you would certainly not have introduced him. But as a friend you should definitely have introduced him saying, "This is Mr. Smith, a friend of ours, who is fixing our set."

Visiting a Sick Friend

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it wrong for a young girl to go to see a man friend who is sick, at his house? His parents will, of course, be there but I have been told that even so, it would not be the proper thing to do. Your opinion will be appreciated.

Answer: If you know this family, it would be quite all right to telephone his mother and ask if John is well enough to see you, and if she says "yes," you ask when will be the best time for you to come.

Stork Shower

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to know if it is proper to give a stork shower after the arrival of a baby? I was planning on giving such a shower for a friend of mine but the baby arrived earlier than expected and I am not sure whether I should go ahead with my plans.

Answer: Certainly you may give the shower. In fact, in my opinion, the baby's presence would add greatly to the picture.

To help you write different types of notes, Mrs. Post's book, "Letter Writing," is available. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. To obtain a copy, send 25 cents in coin to Dept. EP, c/o The Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

The youngster was interested and watched the bridesmaids, commenting on their dresses and then the bride appeared. He asked his mother what it was

Home for Aged Submits Annual Report for '55

The board of managers, Home for the Aged, 80 Washington avenue, held its annual meeting Thursday. The annual report was presented by the secretary, as follows:

"Madame President and members of the Board of Managers of the Home for the Aged of Ulster county. As we close our 35th year since the founding of the Home for the Aged, it gives me pleasure to present the annual report.

Mrs. Gerard Betz, our President, has served us faithfully. Many problems have presented themselves during the year, and these have taken up many additional hours of her time, which she has cheerfully given, and we find her a most capable leader.

For various reasons six of our managers felt they could no longer serve, and their resignations were accepted with deep regret. They are the Mmes. Stanley Matthews, E. C. Reed, Jay Rifenbary, Arthur Laidlaw, Henry M. Cameron and Harry Halverson. Appointments were made by our president to fill unexpired terms. Those appointed were Mrs. Fred Schwenk, Mrs. Edward DeWitt, Mrs. W.

H. Brigham, Mrs. Richard Thibaut and Mrs. Viola Babcock.

THE BOARD meetings have been held regularly on the fourth Thursday of the month with the exception of July, August, and December.

A close contact was kept with the members of our family by the visiting committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Dewese DeWitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Tandy, our superintendents, have proven most satisfactory and we find the home running smoothly, with the family very contented and happy. The extra hours given by many of the managers and former managers, taking the guests of pleasure and providing hours of pleasure, has provided hours of pleasure and is sincerely appreciated by all. This phase as well as all other entertainment was under the chairmanship of Mrs. Thomas Reynolds.

The health of our family is carefully taken care of and the board is notified immediately of any illness at the Home.

Good health however, cannot always prevail, and during the past year Miss Jemina Steen, Mrs. Bertha Fowler and Mrs. Lundy were taken from us. Miss Salisbury was admitted as a new resident.

Holidays are always happy occasions, when special events are arranged. The guests' birthdays are celebrated with appropriate festivities including birthday cakes. Many social evenings make life in the Home, pleasant and enjoyable. The Home was beautifully decorated at Christmas time by Mr. and Mrs. Tandy.

Prompt, Friendly Service

THE RELIGIOUS services held under the supervision of the Ministerial Association and Gideon Society are very sincerely appreciated by the members of our family, especially those who are unable to attend church services. We thank the ministers, and members of their choirs who make these services possible.

Our annual Donation Day Tea and Sale is always one of the highlights in our year, and the managers did a grand job to make it a successful event. The day is always enjoyed by the members of our family, as they meet and visit with many friends. They have a real part in the event, too, because of the innumerable handmade items they provide for sale. Mrs. C. V. Gunther this year as last, worked patiently and gladly with the guests throughout the months, advising and instructing them in this work which has a therapeutic value as well as contributing financially to the donation day funds.

Articles sold at the fair on Donation Day amounted to $392.39. Cash donations received were $667.75, making a total of $1060.14. Large quantities of food also were donated by our local business people for use in the Home.

It is impossible to mention all of the kindnesses extended to the Home by its many friends throughout the year, but we do thank each and every one who in any way contributes to the welfare of the Home. The many groups and societies who come in for an evening to entertain the members of our family, the gifts of clothing, magazines, books, flowers, and the gifts of money so very necessary to carry on the work. The many professional services, too, that are provided either without cost or for a very small fee. Our sincere thanks and gratitude to you all.

And, to our Board of Trustees, we express our appreciation for the splendid cooperation and understanding given to the Managers as shown by the careful consideration of recommendations made by the Managers for the Home.

DURING 1955, many replacements have been recommended and provided. Included are ovens, hot water tanks, living room rug, sheets, mattress pads, pillow cases, venetian blinds, to name but a few. The building was painted outside and several rooms redecorated.

The Good Cheer Fund, accumulated through dues of Associate members and the proceeds of the Donation Day fair, provided many comforts for the guests as well. Among these were new slipcovers where needed in the guests rooms, rugs for guests rooms, hearing aids, dentures, glasses and other necessities as well as a television set.

Salary increases were given to our superintendents and other members of the staff in accordance with the recommendation of the managers to the trustees. Our list of associate members was increased by 44 during the year.

Three applicants were approved during the year and their names added to the waiting list, which now totals 31 applicants. There are 30 single and 3 double rooms in the Home and all are occupied. The average age of the residents is 88.

On this occasion, too, the Board recognizes and thanks the Press and Radio for the generous and valued space and time allotted to it through the year and particularly for publicizing the Donation Day event, the proceeds from which are of great assistance in maintaining the Home.

All of the working committees of the board did a magnificent job throughout the year and are to be commended for their happiness and comfort their efforts provided for the guests at the Home. Besides the committee chairman already mentioned, others included Mrs. Reynolds B. Carr, Good Cheer; Mrs. William McNamee, Applications; Mrs. Frank Prior, House and Purchasing; Mrs. Clyde Wonderly, burial; and Mrs. Howard R. St. John, auditing. Our treasurer, Mrs. Leonard Flicker, too, deserves a vote of thanks for the splendid manner in which she takes care of our accounts.

Our by-laws were revised during the year to meet present requirements.

Were it not for the gifts, cash and others, as well as thoughtful deeds of kindness expressed by our friends in Ulster county, coupled with the expert financial management of our trustees, and the unceasing efforts of the Managers, the Home for the Aged would not have achieved the high rating it enjoys in the state of New York, and with this continued help, we look forward to another year of service that this Home may remain a place of peace and security to the members of our family.

Respectfully submitted,
PEG HARD,
Recording Secretary.

Some 350 years is only a drop in an ocean to the age of the earth, yet look what has transpired here on this continent and in this state. Going back to a little booklet written by a well-known Kingstonian back in 1909, called "The Beginnings of New York and Kingston the First State Capital," I marvel at the progress of the past 300 years, but why was the human mind so slow before that, and what will happen in the next 350 years.

According to Miss Forsyth: "Among the earliest of the Dutch voyagers to explore our shores were Hendrick Christensen and Andrian Block, who in 1611, carried back with them to Holland, two sons of an Indian chief for a short visit as representatives of the natives found in America. Block discovered Block Island which preserves his name."

In 1612 Christensen and Block were sent over in command of the "Fortune" and "Tiger" to seek trade along our Hudson shores. The "Tiger" Block's vessel, was accidentally burned to the water's edge while anchored off Manhattan island. The crew was all saved so Block decided to winter on the island and rebuild his vessel during the winter of 1613-14. They also built four huts on what seems to be 30 and 41 Broadway, Manhattan and in the early spring, the new vessel called: "Restless" was ready for her voyage to Holland. "This was the beginning of ship-building in America" someone wrote in the American Commonwealths. To do this work, it seems the Dutch received aid and material from the friendly Indians. This was also the year, Christiansen, built a "strong house" on Castle or Patroon's Island, below Albany.

Its dimensions were 36 feet by 26 feet. It had a stockade 58 feet square with a moat 18 feet wide, all armed by two large guns and 11 swivels. The garrison numbered 10 or 12 men. In the same year, a fort was established at what is now our Kingston Point," Miss Forsyth wrote.

The States General of the Dutch Republic granted a charter on October 11, 1614 saying in part: "Excuse us for not having discovered the newly discovered land lying in America." Then the Dutch Company to whom this charter was granted made the first treaty with the Indians. According to Miss Forsyth: "It was in 1623 when the first organized party of colonists, chiefly Walloons, arrived and found, welcome and ready help on the part of the original possessors of the land, among these was the first Director General, Peter Minuet, who in time bought the island of Manhattan for the equivalent of $24 which was met with full approval by both sides and official possession was taken by the colonists on May 6, 1626. Cornelius Jacobsen May brought over 30 families in 1623. Minuet brought necessary items for his colonists such as: seeds, plants, animals and instruments of husbandry. He always dealt honorably with the Indians, and set up friendly relationships with Governor Bradford of Plymouth, by correspondence and sending him gifts of sugar and Dutch cheese. Jersey City, N. J. (P)—Many an old-time industrial leader thought he did a workman a favor by keeping him on the payroll.

This breed of boss is rapidly vanishing from the American scene. He is being replaced by executives who recognize that employee loyalty is a keystone in any successful business if it is to endure.

A LEADING SPOKESMAN of the "happy shop" principle in industry today is Frank G. Atkinson.

Atkinson, whose weak eyes forced him to give up his dream of becoming a professional baseball player, took a $4 a week job at 15 with the Joseph Dixon Crucible Co. here. Now at 57 he heads the firm, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of pencils, crucibles and industrial graphite paints.

During his steady rise from office boy to president, Atkinson, who comes from a long line of Methodist ministers, developed a conviction that the Golden Rule was as important in industry as it was in religious life.

"BUSINESS IS people," he said. "The dignity of the individual worker is important. But applying the Golden Rule isn't merely good business. It's the only way to live."

Atkinson takes it almost as a personal blow when any of his 1,000-odd employees quit, and few do.

"One of the greatest loss factors borne by industry today is traceable to a high rate in personnel turnover," he said. "A management which does not realize that will not succeed."

But how can a management avoid losing its skilled employees and escape the expense of training new ones?

Atkinson feels it should pay wages "as high as the business will stand," schedule the work so as to avoid layoffs, install profit-sharing programs and pension, medical aid and insurance plans.

"BUT ABOVE ALL—and I know the value of a buck," he continued, "there is much more to keeping people than just the amount you pay them or the extra benefits they get. They have to be recognized, to feel that they themselves are essential to the success of the business."

"Before we go outside to bring someone in to fill an important post, we look over everyone on the payroll to see if we can't find one who can be advanced within the organization.

"We encourage our people to study and prepare for a better job. We sometimes even pay their tuition."

The incentive program seems to have paid off. The 129-year-old firm has never had a strike. When outside interests threatened to get financial control of the company several years ago the employees bought stock themselves and prevented it.

"ABOUT 40 PER CENT of the employees now own stock," Atkinson said. "We think that's a good thing, but we don't campaign for it."

Atkinson feels opportunity has never been greater in industry, that it has never been easier to get good business training. But it worries him that many young men today prefer the security of a safe job with seniority to the risks, challenges and rewards of management.

"They ought to knock that spirit out of their heads," he said. "It isn't the American idea merely to look for something safe and easy."

"Business isn't work. It's a baseball game. Maybe we ought to find another word for hard work."

"Nothing you're really interested in is work. What is happiness anyway? When you become so interested in your job you are unconscious of the passing of time, you are truly happy."

Gonzales Downs Trabert in Straight Sets for 21-7 Lead

Pro Champion Scores 6-4, 6-3; Segura Wins

Disappointing Crowd Watches Pro Troupe

Pancho Gonzales, the world's greatest tennis player, obviously has the Mexican sign on Tony Trabert, the crew-cut from Cincinnati who is making his first tour with Promoter Jack Kramer's cash and carry troupe.

After 28 appearances in the 100-match North American tour, the battle lines seem fairly well established as 800 spectators in a dimly disappointing crowd discovered last night at the municipal auditorium.

Off to a slow start in the first set, Gonzales proved his worth by unleashing his cannonball service to down Trabert in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

THE VICTORY gave Gonzales a commanding 21-7 margin over the 1955 U. S. amateur champion and spectators saw nothing that would indicate Trabert has much of a chance to narrow the gap.

Pancho Segura, the Ecuadorian jumping jack, apparently has the same control over Rex Hartwig, the Australian, who is called the world's greatest doubles player. Segura had to battle hard to whip Hartwig, 7-5, in their one-set match to extend his lead to a whopping 22-5 margin.

HARTWIG demonstrated his value as a doubles player, however, when he teamed with Trabert to polish off Segura and Gonzales, 8-0. That gave the "amateurs" of the troupe an 18-7 edge over the old pros.

From the spectator standpoint, the Segura-Hartwig battle was the more spectacular as they played impossible angles, concentrating on each other's backhands and the match was in doubt until the final shot.

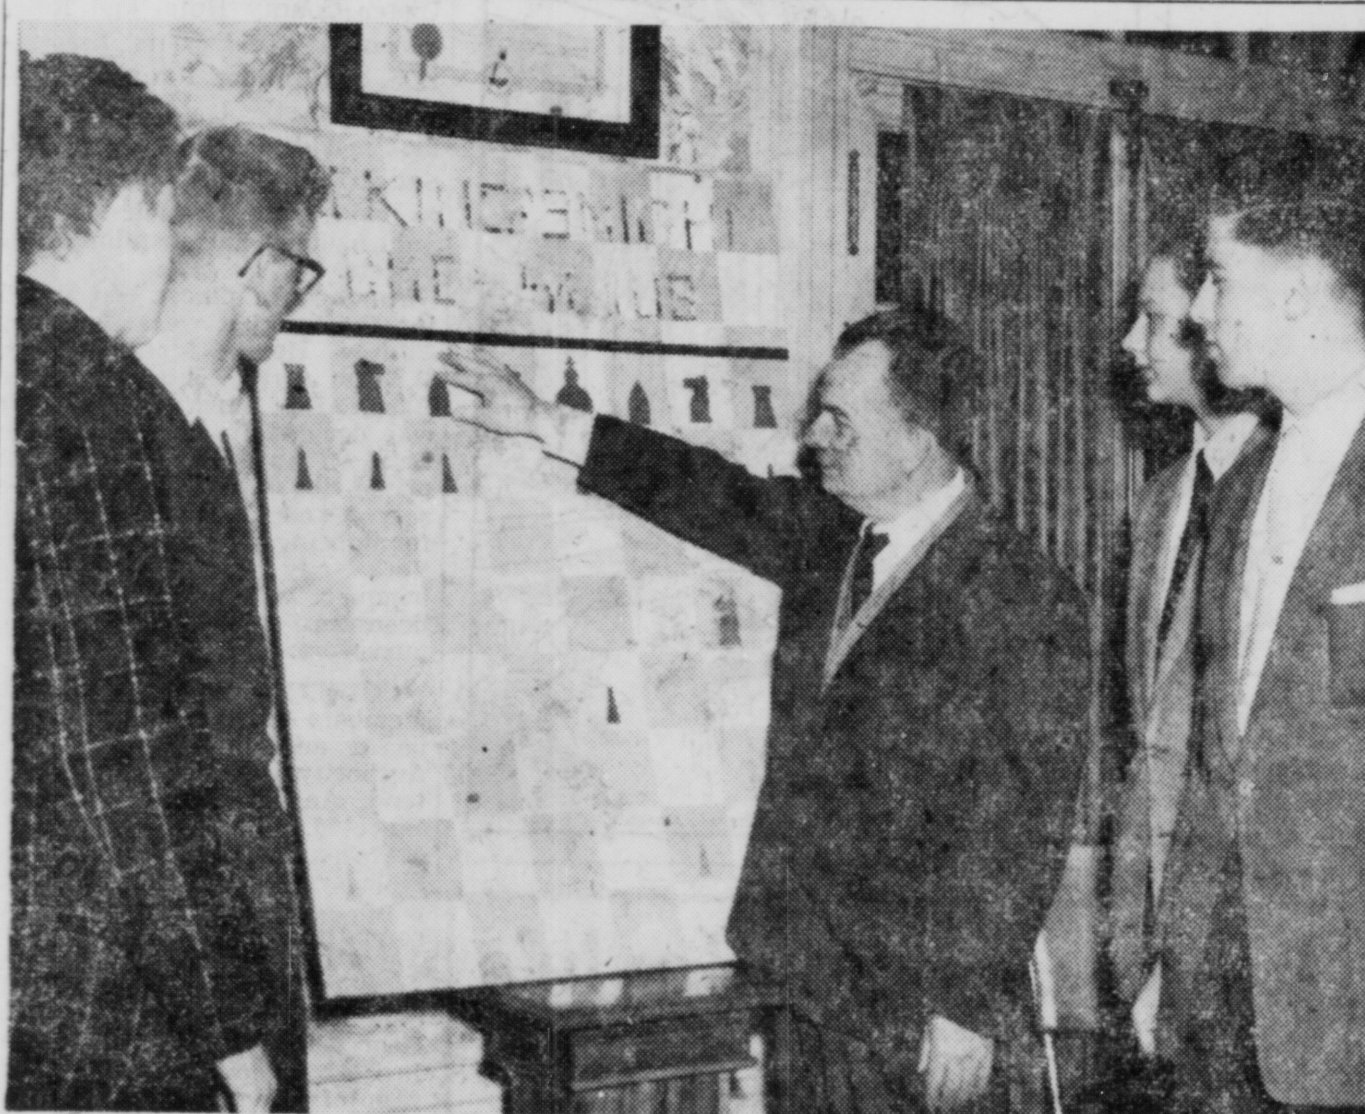

Gonzales and Trabert were something else again. The tall, dour Gonzales, who seldom smiles, is still a hungry player with $25,000 and another contract riding on the result of this year's tour.

HE STARTED SLOWLY and Trabert gained a 2-1 edge. When they deuced at 3-3, Gonzales brought his tremendous service into action, reeled off several service aces and the outcome could not have been in doubt in the minds of most of the spectators.

Gonzales and Trabert play more of the boom-boom type of tennis—terrible service, volley and smash. There is no love lost between the pair and Gonzales guards his lofty estate in the tennis world with a cold, calculating fury.

TRABERT LED 1-0 in the second set, then 2-2. Gonzales squared the set at 2-2, went ahead 3-2 and then uncorked two successive service aces. The rest was routine.

The troupe is idle until Thursday night when they visit Montreal, Canada, in the first leg of a Canadian jaunt.

Dons, With New Record in Bag, Figure to Extend Skein Past 50 Mark

(By The Associated Press)

Will success spoil the San Francisco Dons? It's not likely. But that's about the only thing that figures to trouble the all-winning Dons until they put their major college basketball championship on the line in March in the NCAA tournament.

Coach Phil Woolpert's club has leveled everything in sight, ringing up 40 straight victories for an all-time major college record. And the 11 games remaining on their regular season schedule wouldn't scare your timid Aunt Minnie.

What's more, the top-ranked San Francisco crew is really all alone atop the national rankings. Dayton, which gave the Dons at least token opposition for the No. 1 spot while rolling to a 14-0 mark, was chopped down by Louisville 66-64 in overtime last weekend.

ALL THAT STANDS between the Dons and a 51-0 record are the weak sisters of their California Basketball Association—San Jose State (tabbed as victory No. 41 tomorrow night), Santa Clara, College of the Pacific and the like. Still, Woolpert insists "we'll play 'em one at a time."

The Dons probably could take 'em all at once.

They've whipped the big guys and the little guys alike in their record run, but the Dons never ran into anybody quite like the California Bears, who became a victim No. 40 Saturday, 33-24. A stalling game by the Bears prevented the Dons from scoring more than one field goal in the second half, but it couldn't prevent the inevitable and San Francisco smashed the 39-game record hung up by Long Island U. in 1935-37 and matched by Seton Hall four years later.

If the Dons make it two straight titles in the NSAA, the championship victory would give them 55 straight—tying the all-time, all-college record amassed by little Peru (Neb.) State from 1921 to 1926. San Francisco, however, won't have the services of pepper-pot K. C. Jones for the NCAA shindig. He was ruled ineligible by the NCAA because of too many varsity seasons.

Other hopefuls seeking NCAA berths return to the task tonight after layoffs for exams. Illinois (4-0) gets back to the Big 10 conference race with a chance to tighten its first place grip at Minnesota. Kansas State, tied with Colorado and Kansas at 3-1, can edge into the Big 7 lead against Oklahoma. K-State and Colorado have at it Saturday with Kansas meeting fourth-place Iowa State.

KENTUCKY LOOKS for a "comeback" in the Southeastern conference against Georgia Tech tonight after Vanderbilt dumped the Wildcats 81-73 Saturday.

Rangers Halt Black Hawks, 6-2

(By The Associated Press)

The New York Rangers, who a little over two weeks ago had a comfortable lead on second place in the National Hockey League, are mighty thankful they are returning to the confines of their home ice at Madison Square Garden.

In nine games since being ousted from the Garden by an ice show, the Rangers have won four, lost as many, tied one and yielded second place to the red hot Detroit Red Wings. The Wings posted a 7-1-1 record during the same period, moving from five points back of the Rangers to a point advantage today.

The Rangers wound up their long trip last night in Chicago, where they defeated the Black Hawks 6-2. At the same time the Wings held the pace setting Montreal Canadiens to a 1-1 tie. Boston's last place Bruins turned back Toronto 3-1 for their fourth victory in the last five games.

The New York-Chicago game was a contest only during the first period as the Hawks went down to their fifth straight defeat and saw their winless string extended to eight games. Lou Fontinato put the Rangers in front 2-1 at 6:44 of the second period and then Dave Creighton, Ron Murphy, Larry Popein and Fontinato again came through with goals.

JEAN BELIVEAU scored his 29th goal of the season in the first period to send the Canadiens away in front, but Alex Delvecchio tied it for Detroit at 17:17 of the middle stanza and the rest of the game belonged to the goals.

Two goals by Cal Gardner and one by Jerry Toppazzini carried the Bruins to within hailing distance of a playoff spot.

Basilio's Gloves Bring $1,500.30 In TV Auction

(Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 30 (AP))

The March of Dimes campaign gained $1,500.30 here yesterday when two pairs of boxing gloves used by Carmen Basilio were auctioned off on a TV program.

An anonymous bidder paid $1,000.10 for one set of gloves worn by the welterweight champion in his successful title defense against Tony DeMarco in November.

The Syracuse Rotary Club paid $500.20 for the second pair.

The auction was conducted over WHEN-TV.

DeVincenzo Wins Jamaica Tourney

(Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 30 (AP))

Roberto DeVincenzo, veteran Argentine pro playing out of Mexico City, probably never made a more important shot than yesterday when he scored a double eagle on the 525-yard 14th hole and went on to win the Jamaica Open golf tournament.

When his second shot, hit with a No. 3 wood, rolled into the hole it gave him a three-stroke lead over Bob Watson of Ardley-on-Hudson, N. Y., and he finished the 72 holes only two strokes in front of the relatively unknown pro. First place was worth $1,500.

DeVincenzo wound up with 260, four strokes under the championship record. Watson had 262.

Barnes Named To Colgate Post

(Hamilton, N. Y., Jan. 30 (AP))

Everett Barnes has been named to succeed the late William A. Reid as director of the Division of Physical Education and Athletics at Colgate University. His appointment was announced Saturday by university President Everett N. Case following the winter meeting of the University's board of trustees. Barnes, assistant athletic director since 1939, was graduated from Colgate in 1922.

Hoad Captures Aussie Net Title

(Brisbane, Australia, Jan. 30 (AP))

Lew Hoad won Australia's tennis championship today by overpowering Ken Rosewall 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5 in a singles final that turned into a real grudge match between Australia's erstwhile tennis twins.

Both of the court aces, who brought the Davis Cup back Down Under in 1955, wanted desperately to win today's match, and not only because it is the biggest sporting event of the year.

Both also wanted to win for professional reasons, since they gave U. S. promoter Jack Kramer a big no late last year and this year was the first big national championship of 1956. Victories day, at Wimbledon and in the U. S. championships would mean more money for a player who wants to turn pro.

HOAD WAS NOT to be denied as his big serve and blistering volleys almost blasted Rosewall right off the court. Only in the second set was little Ken able to control the play at all.

The split between the pair, who have been tennis teammates for years, started at Wimbledon last year at Hoad's wedding to Jennifer Staley, another young Aussie tennis player.

Rosewall was told nothing about the wedding. He was not asked to be the best man, although he could not be anyhow because he is under 21, and Rex Hartwig stood up for Hoad.

Hoad and Rosewall have had little time for each other since.

Burke Wins PGA With Final Birdie

(Dunedin, Fla., Jan. 30 (AP))

Pete Burke of Huntington, N. Y., needed a birdie three on the final hole to win the annual PGA Seniors golf tournament and that's exactly what he got. Burke shot a final three over par 75 for a 54-hole total to win the event.

Just turned 50, Burke never has won a major tournament. That birdie was worth $1,000 and a trip to England where Burke will meet the British pro golf titlist in a special match this summer.

Ock Willowet of Dayton, Ohio, also had a 75 on the final 18 and finished a stroke behind at 216. Joe Zarhardt, Greensboro, N. C., was third with 217.

Russian Skaters Tie in Olympic Race

Reds Snap Mark; Miss Albright 1st In Figure Skating

Cortina, D'Ampezzo, Italy, Jan. 30 (AP)—The powerful Russians continued their cascade of gold medals today when two young speed skaters, Yuriy Mikailov and Eugeny Grishin, tied for the 1500-meter (metric mile) championship in the identical world record breaking time of two minutes, 8.6 seconds.

The sensational race on the mile-high Misurina track overshadowed other developments of the winter Olympic games' fourth day which saw America's Tenley Albright gain a substantial lead in women's figure skating and Norway and Switzerland crash through to their first championships.

THE WIRY, 24-year-old Grishin, a Moscow engraver who captured the 500 meters earlier in the world record time of 40.2 seconds, first shot across the finish line in his race against the clock. Moments later Mikailov, a 25-year-old engineering student, matched the time in a mighty burst over the ice.

The victory gave the Soviet Union a sweep of skating events already held and added two more gold medals to the growing Russian pile, which now counts five. No other country has more than one. Two flying Finns, Toivo Salonen and Juhani Jarvinen, also shattered the world and Olympic marks on the lightning Misurina ice, rated the fastest in the world. Salonen did 2:09.4 and Jarvinen in 2:09.7.

THE LISTED WORLD record is 2:09.8, set by Grishin himself. Mikailov had a still unrecognized clocking of 2:09.1 last month. The Olympic record was 2:17.6, set eight years ago by Sverre Farstad of Norway. The deadlocked finish plus a fifth and sixth gave Russia 17 points and boosted its total in the unofficial team scoring to 81.

U.S. Hockey Team Wins, 6-2

Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy, Jan. 30 (AP)—The United States unleashed a six-goal barrage in the first period today to score an easy 7-2 victory over Germany in the opening game of the Olympic hockey championship round.

points, more than twice that of any other country. The United States, still without a medal of any sort, is far down the list with 4½ points.

RUSSIAN SKATERS—... However, America saw a championship in the making when Miss Albright, 20-year-old world champion from Newton Center, Mass., amassed 612.1 points for a big lead after three compulsory figures in the women's figure skating competition and her arch rival, 16-year-old Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N. Y., came in second with 614.5.

THE AMERICANS now appear assured of gold medals in both men's and women's figure skating. Hayes Alan Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., took the lead after the compulsory phase of the men's figure skating yesterday. Both the men and women must skate free style later in the week.

Hallger Brenden, a 27-year-old Norwegian woodchopper, won the 15-kilometer (nine miles, 560 yards) cross country ski race in 49 minutes, 39 seconds.

Renee Colliard, a Swiss pharmacy student, dethroned Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence in the women's special slalom, twisting down the 500-yard incline twice in a total time of one minute, 52.3 seconds.

MRS. LAWRENCE, Parshall, Colo., housewife who has borne three children since she won two gold medals at Oslo four years ago, hit a gate on her first descent and took a bad tumble on the second. She finished far back in 2:25.8.

Behind Miss Colliard came Regina Schopf of Austria, one of the favorites, in 1:55.3, followed by Russia's Eugeniya Sidorova, timed in 1:56.7.

Mrs. Dorothy Surgenor of Seattle, Wash., subbing for the injured Betsy Snite of Norwich, Conn., had the best U. S. time with runs of 1:09.1 and 1:08.2 for 2:17.3. Gladys (Skeets) Werner, University of Denver coach, had a total clocking of 2:30.1.

Penny Pitou of Laconia, N. H., had 2:42.5.

Russia also gained a third place in the 15-kilometer cross country, staged in a heavy snowstorm which swept the Ampezzo Valley. Paul Koltschin, registered 50:17 and placed just back of Sweden's Sixten Jernberg, the runnerup to Brenden with 50:15.

Double Howl

Spokane (AP)—Spokane's howling air raid siren touched off a deafening wail from six dozen dogs at the Humane Society and drove a dog catcher right out of the building. A. N. McPhee said he couldn't stand the noise from the dogs when the big siren went off in a test blast. The siren is on top of a building about 10 blocks from the pound.

RED STAR PERFORMANCE—Russian skier Wry Moschkin, shown on one of his jumps, takes an early lead in Olympic Nordic combined event at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy (Jan. 29). He won jump event with two leaps of 247 feet, 8.51 inches, and 252 feet, 7.56 inches, for a point total of 220. Second part of event, a cross country ski race, will be run Tuesday. Jackson to Duel Baker In Friday Garden Bout

(By The Associated Press)

Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson returns from a three-month lay-off to take on high ranked Bob Baker Friday night at Madison Square Garden in New York in an important heavyweight test.

Although the Hurricane man huffed and puffed to no effect in losing to Jimmy Slade, Oct. 28 explaining "I couldn't get my arms and legs working right," he currently is rated No. 3 among Rocky Marciano's challengers with a 25-4-1 record.

Baker ranks even higher, No. 1 under the National Boxing Association, and No. 2 behind Archie Moore, in the Ring ratings.

The 10-round match, first meeting of the two challengers, will be carried on radio and television (NBC) starting at 10 p. m. (EST).

JIMMY CARTER, former lightweight champ, also comes off a long layoff to box Cisco Andrade of Compton, Calif., Wednesday at Chicago Stadium.

Carter, only man to win the 135-pound championship three times, hasn't fought since he failed to regain the title from Wallace (Bud) Smith at Cincinnati, Oct. 28. It will be Jimmy's 100th fight.

Andrade is ranked high among the first 10 in the lightweight class with a record of only two defeats in 34 starts.

The match gets the usual Wednesday treatment (ABC radio and TV).

CARMINE FIORE of Brooklyn and Gene Poirer of Niagara Falls, N. Y., will try to top their exciting first match when they meet again tonight at St. Nicholas Arena in New York. The bout will be televised (Dumont).

Two welters fought to a draw in 10 rounds, Dec. 19, although Fiore was a heavy favorite.

Fort Wayne Skein Continues

(By The Associated Press)

Fort Wayne's Pistons, looking for new worlds to conquer after finding little resistance in the Western division, currently are the hottest club in the National Basketball Association with a seven-game winning streak.

The surge has left them high and dry in the Western, 7½ games ahead of the second place Rochester Royals. They took No. 7 in fine style last night, whipping Philadelphia's Eastern division pacesetters 99-85.

Fort Wayne now is traveling at a 591 clip, second only to the Warrior's fabulous .659 percentage.

BOSTON MOVED to within 3½ games of Philadelphia by dunking 10 points in the final 1:34 to run away from Rochester 112-103. The New York Knickerbockers, another 3½ games behind, tightened their hold on third place in the Eastern division by edging Syracuse 99-95 in overtime.

The St. Louis Hawks tightened the also-ran race in the Western, defeating Minneapolis 114-107. Minneapolis is a half game behind Rochester and the Hawks are a half game behind Minneapolis.

Ken Sears brought the Knicks to a 91-all tie with 3 seconds remaining in the regulation game at Syracuse and Ray Felix potted five points in the overtime. Carl Braun led the Knicks with 23 points, while Felix had 22. New York now leads the Nats, who have lost 11 of 14, by 2½ games.

Kingston to Face Fallsburgh, Monticello Squads This Week

Tomorrow Night; Play Monties Away

UCAL Sets Three Games on Friday

Kingston High School resumes its bid for DUSO League basketball honors this week, taking on two village school opponents.

The Maroons, who stand third in the circuit with a 5-2 record, are hosts to Fallsburgh Central School tomorrow night at the Kate Walton field house. On Friday, the KHS quintet visits Monticello.

Three other games are scheduled tomorrow. Poughkeepsie is at Middletown and Monticello at Port Jervis in the DUSO loop. Arlington visits New Paltz in a non-league afternoon tilt.

ON FRIDAY, four schoolboy games are carded other than the KHS-Monties tilt. Newburgh visits Ellenville while in the UCAL, it's Highland at Saugerties, Marlboro at Onteora and Walkill at Kerhonkson.

New Paltz State Teachers College has two away games scheduled. The Hawks play Waterbury, Conn. Teachers on Thursday night and the following evening will be guests of the Danbury, Conn. Teachers.

On the basis of comparative records, Kingston is a solid favorite over the Fallsburgh crew. The Comets, as the visitors are known, have a 1-6 record and are next-to-last in the league.

Fallsburgh lacks height but features several good point-makers, notably forward Harvey Findling.

FINDLING is averaging approximately 14 points per game. Jay Kinsbrunner, one of the taller Fallsburgh players, is another fine scorer. Others are Carl Bresky and George Fedun. The latter two specialize in sinking tricky, driving, layups.

Kingston coach Jack Gilligan planned a change in his starting lineup for the first time this season, other than for illness or injury.

Larry Johnson will replace Tony Grimaldi at the right forward post, Johnson looked very impressive during last week's scrimmage sessions; Grimaldi did not.

OTHERWISE, the lineup will be the same—Tom Fleming at the other forward, Richie Strong in the pivot slot and Al Long and Bob Smith at guards.

Among the UCAL schools, Saugerties still ranks as the power. The defending champions gained their 11th straight victory Friday night and never looked better.

Kerhonkson, much improved since the season's start, knocked Highland out of contention. The Highlanders, however, could still cause the Sawyers some concern.

Onteora looked like a new team with Benny Robinson back in form. The Indians' biggest need now is a tall center who can score.

Snow, Cold Hit Mid-Continent, Rocky Mountains

(By The Associated Press)

Mid-winter snow storms and a fresh mass of cold air hit wide areas of the mid-continent and the Rocky Mountains today.

More than 10 inches of snow whitened the dry wheatlands of western Kansas as a storm moved eastward from the Rockies. Snow measuring from 2 to 7 inches fell in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Oklahoma and eastern Kansas.

HEAVIEST snow falls of the season hit parts of Colorado and Idaho over the weekend. Light snow was reported in the Ohio Valley, the middle Mississippi Valley and parts of New England.

The stormy weather in the mid-continent resulted when a cold air mass moving southward over the north central section collided with a warm moist air from the Gulf.

Temperatures dropped an average of 20 degrees in northern Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and western Kansas, with some falls of more than 30 degrees in extreme northern Texas. At Fort Worth, the mercury plunged from 66 to 33 degrees. Wisconsin also reported temperature drops of around 20 degrees.

IT WAS BELOW zero in most of the northern plains and Minnesota with readings around -10 in northern Montana and North Dakota.

air extended from eastern Ohio southwestward through northern Kentucky, western Tennessee, northern Louisiana and northeast Texas.

In front of the colder air, southerly winds brought warming to the Middle and South Atlantic coast states and parts of New England. Readings were up from 10 to 15 degrees compared to 24 hours earlier.

West of the Rockies it was colder over parts of Arizona and New Mexico while the freezing line covered most all of the region west of the Continental Divide except along the west coast and southern sections of Arizona. Light snow fell in Washington.
